Poet and Dramatist ROBINSON JEFFERS

Medea, Jeffers' Great Drama At Forest Theater

Every person living in Carmel owes himself a night in the Forest Theater and tomorrow Medea, the horrific drama of a woman spurned that left New York and London audiences agape at its power and fury, opens there under the stars and a waning moon.

Today the aisles and seats have been cleared of their mat of scented pine needles and oak leaves, a grim and ominously towering Grecian portal stands stark facing the hushed hillside, and all is in readiness.

Tomorrow the dusk, and perhaps the mist, will creep up through the branches, the audience will fall silent, and across the sandy pit the lights will brighten upon a lone figure silhouetted against the grey stone and monumental gates of ancient Corinth.

Robinson Jeffers wrote the play for Judith Anderson. Like all his narrative poems, this free adaptation of the drama of Euripides is dominated by inexorable fate and doom. Action, violent action is always poised on the threshold of his opening lines, compressed and concentrated, as one critic has said, with such appalling effect that the shock is electric.

This preoccupation of Jeffers with the dark wings of disaster is not morbid. His purpose is still that of his Grecian precursors: to purge the soul of the witness of base and sordid thoughts, to purify through emotional fire. His first effort at the kathartic drama, Tower Beyond Tragedy, had its premiere in the Forest Theater on July 4, 1941. Judith Anderson was then the key figure. (I literally carried a spear, fortunately blunt). The play was top-heavy with rhetoric, neither drama nor poem but a hybrid, unfused and unequal.

Medea is different. Tightly woven, a play expertly compounded of heat and light, it moves swiftly and terribly. It demands such enor-

A Quiet Day On The Planning Commission Scene, For A Change

With efficiency and dispatch the Planning Commission worked straight through its business on Wednesday, and in 45 minutes reached that lovely spot on the agenda sacred to "adjournment".

In the process, it denied Richard Catlin's request for a horse-trade on motel signs. He and J. O. Handley suggested that they be granted use permits to erect two directional signs about two blocks from Mr. Catlin's Tradewinds motel. After 18 months they would be glad to remove them, plus the non-conforming signs presently on Mr. Handley's property. The commission felt that if this were granted, no motel, hostelry or lodging house in Carmel could be erected without a sign, which would have the net effect of completely negating the sign ordinance.

Tradewinds had one bright moment, however, when its business sign (on its own property) was approved.

The Studio Motel plan for screening an ugly wall from the view of the bathers at its swimming pool received another rebuff. The solution of the problem was little better than the wall, in the commission's eyes, and a hint was suggested as an alternative. Chairman Wilcox asked Frank Hampshire, representing the motel, and commission representatives to get together and work out an acceptable plan.

There was no action on the De Camp report concerning an ordinance to limit height, bulk and area of buildings because Commissioner Blanks, who is working on it, is on army duty. Construction work on the Pine Inn was granted a 90-day extension of time, and the commission gratefully accepted the support of the Citizens Committee in further investigation.

Money Matters Claim Council, Trustee Time

The Carmel School Board of Trustees is one up on the Carmel City Council. It set its tentative budget and tax rate for the coming year, Wednesday night, and the city is still working its way through the preliminary steps.

One reason is that the school budget must be in the county superintendent of schools' office by July 1, and the city budget does not usually jell until August or September. In any case, with the setting of a tax rate of $2.35, the school trustees will have a tight budget of $1,438,628.69, after granting pay increases to the staff. The city, also, has recognized the decrease in purchasing power by giving a 5 per cent raise across the board to its employees. This will mean an increase in city expenditures of about $10,000 besides the normal step increases.

Despite the fact that the councilmen could find no way to insure that the entire cost-of-living increases would find their way safely to the pockets of the employees. A 5 percent raise means considerably less than that after the Internal Revenue gets finished. Gunnar Norberg, declaring that such salary raises aggravate the inflationary trend of the national economy, was given short shrift by the rest of the council, for one of the council's headaches is the difficulty of retaining its employees in the face of better paying jobs. As Councilman May said, "We don't set the economic policy of the nation, but we've got to live with it."

Unanimity reigned on the council when it came to compensating City Clerk Larry Rose $80 more per month for the two extra secretaries it has heaped on him, and when it approved support of a "catastrophe" health insurance plan for the city workers.

The school trustees awarded

Carmel Unincorporated Wants Mission Ranch Argument Reopened

At a meeting at the Carmel High School Wednesday afternoon, representatives of Carmel Unincorporated and the Carmel Citizens' Committee met with Supervisor Thomson Hudson to discuss the recent action of the County Board of Supervisors in granting a building extension on the controversial Mission Ranch property.

The business activities of the Mission Ranch have long been the object of criticism by the out-of-the-city dwellers, for it is a non-conforming use in a strictly residential area. Hudson said that the extension approval was on stiff terms: no further requests by the Mission Ranch for extensions or pleas for a change in zoning. Unanimously, the board of directors of Carmel Unincorporated voted a

Discovery Of Bonampak Highlights Healey's Career

By RAYLYN PENNEY

Giles Greville Healey says, among other things, that adventure for its own sake is out of date.

The intrepid vagabond who plunges alone into the wilderness just to see what it's like has been replaced by the photographer, the glyph reader, the artist, the linguist, the architectural specialist, the engineer and the technician who records blood types.

Healey, the archeological explorer credited with what has been called the most important single discovery ever made in the Maya country of Central America, lives now at Partington Ridge, Big Sur.

It was in the spring of 1946, while he was making a documentary film The Maya Through The Ages that Healey discovered the now famous frescoes at Bonampak, ancient Maya ruins in eastern Chiapas, the Mexican state bordering Guatemala. The murals, painted during the period 320 to 987 A.D., are perhaps the most spectacular examples of pre-Columbian art in this hemisphere.

Earlier in his career, Healey made the first major expedition up the Orinoco River in Venezuela as far as any white man had gone up to that time, then through the connecting waterways to the Amazon.

He was looking that time for curare, a drug used in heart operations in the civilized world. But in the hands of the Piara Indians it is a violent poison for which no cure is known.

(They inflict wounds by swabbing a sliver which is then blown through a blow gun. As a primitive poison, the curare is used with some additional ingredients demanded by Piara folklore: the Indians take crocodile livers in

CARMEL BABE RUTH SQUAD CLIPS BALDWIN PIANO
Paced by Forrest Cornwall's steady four-hit pitching and some heavy hitting by Danny Holman and John Lefler, Carmel's entry in the Monterey Peninsula Babe Ruth League upped its season record to three wins and two losses by downing the Baldwin Piano nine, 7 to 4, at the Carmel High diamond last Sunday afternoon. Cornwall was in trouble throughout most of the game as the plate was jumping around for him but he was extremely tough in the hot spots and posted 10 strikeouts to work his way out of the tight spots. Holman, Carmel's leading hitter, stroked a pair of singles to drive in three runs and Lefler wound up with a perfect two-for-two. Some deft bunting by Baxter Garcia moved Carmel runners into scoring position and put the little second baseman on base three times in four trips to the plate.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, Bob Henny's squad travels to the El Estero park in Monterey for a joust with the hard-hitting Labor Council nine.

League Standings
(As of June 23rd)

	W	L
Sport Shop	6	0
Turner & McEldowney	4	2
Wilder & Jones	3	2
San Carlos	3	3
Pilot Market	1	4
Boys' Town	0	6

Still rolling along undefeated in second half Little League play, Lew McCreery's come-from-behind gang has clinched the second round with a 6-0 record and one game to play. Since the second-place team, Turner & McEldowney, has lost two games it has no chance of catching the Sports. By copping the second-half, Sport Shop wins the right to play San Carlos, first-half winners, for the 1959 Little League Championship. The championship will be decided with a one-game playoff scheduled for Friday, July 3 at 6:00 o'clock.

In their last two games, the Sports got over Turner & McEldowney, 7 to 5, and blanked San Carlos, 2 to 0. Phil Van Dyne pitched the win over the bricklayers as Robin Smith and Steve Halminski furnished the bat power. A nifty two-hitter by Howdy King plus some good hitting by Pat Woolsey and pitcher King stopped the San Carlos gang. Jeff Zills and Bobby Moffatt collaborated to pitch another two-hitter for the losers but their mates couldn't find their way to the home base. Mike Faber and Craig Cunningham were the only realtor swingers to touch King for base Turner & McEldowney hung on to second place by clipping winless Boys' Town, 14 to 8, with two six-run innings. T & M picked up six markers in the first heat and repeated the performance in the fourth. Ron Berry clubbed a home run for the winners to support the steady pitching of Brian McEldowney and Jerry Oleson.

Jack Cate's Wilder & Jones crew latched onto third place with a 12-8 win over Pilot Market with pitcher Greg Jones getting credit for the victory. Joe Fernandez, the league's hottest hitter, continued his torrid stick work by blasting a home run and scoring four runs for the winners. W & J enjoyed a five-run fifth inning and Pilot retaliated with a happy five-run sixth frame. Jeff Knowles was the big offensive threat for the grocers, getting on base four times in four times at the plate.

Tonight's Little League game matches Turner & McEldowney with Wilder & Jones in a battle for second place in the league standings. Friday night, Boys' Town and Pilot clash for the cellar position and on Tuesday, June 30, the regular Little League season winds up with Sport Shop meeting Wilder & Jones.

This Sunday four bus loads of Carmel Little Leaguers will journey to San Francisco to see the Giants and Phillies at Seals Stadium. This is an annual trip for the Carmel youngsters and is a fitting climax to a fine season of baseball.

Farm Team playoffs continue this Saturday with a consolation game between Nikko's and Special Delivery at 12 Noon and the championship game between Derek Rayne and Village Inn at 2:00 o'clock. Last Saturday Derek Rayne whipped Special Delivery, 14 to 5, and Village Inn got over Nikko's, 9 to 8.

CARMEL MERCHANTS IN SEMI-FINALS OF TOURNAMENT

Picking up three wins in three outings, Paul Artellan's Carmel Merchant softball nine has taken over a co-favorite role in the fast Tri-County Softball Tournament being held at Pacific Grove. In their last two games, the Merchants topped Sherwood Drive-In of Salinas, 4 to 1, and clubbed out a 5-3 decision over favored Rasmussen & Moody. By beating Rasmussen & Moody the local pastimers established themselves as even-up favorites with undefeated Texaco to pick up most of the prize money. The Merchants meet Texaco tonight in tournament semi-final action.

Tuesday night's fracas with Rasmussen & Moody was highlighted by some brilliant fielding on the part of the Merchant infield which was led by Jack McGaughey, Paul Ricketson and Walt Frey. Besides catching a fine game for the winning Merchants, Ricketson also led the hitters with two singles in three chances. Beryl Hartsock pitched the win, giving up eight hits and striking out six R & M swingers.

BABE RUTH BASEBALL IN CARMEL

By Frank "Tim" Timmins

The Carmel Merchants have completed their fifth game of the 1959 schedule in the Monterey Peninsula Babe Ruth League, which also includes one team from Pacific Grove and four teams from the Monterey area. This is the second year for a Carmel entry and the talent is slow in developing, due mainly to the fact that we have not had baseball in Carmel until 1957 when the Little League Park was established. In Monterey there are three large baseball diamonds where the Little League graduate can avail himself and does for the purpose of acquainting himself with the larger playing area for Babe Ruth baseball. With greater participation plus interest, these boys develop faster and are naturally more proficient both with the glove and the bat.

The area from which Monterey has to select its four teams, is within a population of 21,000 people. Pacific Grove has the 13,000 of their own city plus the entire Monterey area to select their team from. Until Carmel Valley is able to field a team in this league (likely in 1961 and maybe 1960) the Carmel entry includes three players from that section. The choice for our team is made from a population of some 16,000 inhabitants but as previously mentioned, the interest and time spent in the development of their own talent is lacking and could get worse, particularly with so little parent and fan interest. An example of this is in the fact that only one boy of 15 on the team has his own personal bat.

The boys generally imagine themselves to be better than they are and are reluctant to give more time to improving themselves with either the bat or glove. There is an old saying, boys, "A teacher can only do so much, the rest must come from the student." You have an excellent coach in Bob "Curly" Henny who learned his baseball under the great Steve O'Neil of the Detroit Tigers.

With Forest "Speed" Cornwall providing the pitching punch, Carmel has been able to salvage three wins with two losses to date. Cornwall has credit for two wins and two losses, with "Big Dave" Harbor getting the other win against Pacific Grove on his first pitching attempt. On that occasion Manager Henny had to reach into the bag of tricks after Pitcher Jim Brown failed to appear at the field for his scheduled pitching assignment.

The standings of the teams to date are:

Archeologist Healey's Exploring Ranged From Curare To Maya Mural

wicker baskets and go hunting for bushmasters who strike the livers and leave their venom. Another additive is a tree sap which is a botanical cousin of strychnine.)

Healey managed to bring out about 16 pounds of the valuable drug.

He has made several trips into North Africa and was exploring in the Guatemalan Highlands as an archeologist when he was assigned by the United Fruit Company to the film job which led "purely by luck", he says, to the discovery of Bonampak.

One of his most fascinating assignments, the Big Sur explorer says, was one he never actually went on:

In the early 1920's he spent more than a year in the library of the Royal Geographical Society in London studying Russian Turkestan preparatory to an expedition there headed by his friend, Dr. Otis Barton. (Dr. Barton is the same man who went deepest into the sea in a bathosphere.)

The expeditionary team had already sent a plane load of supplies ahead and was ready to set out when it was denied access by the Russian government.

To add insult to injury, the plane load of groceries was hijacked between Russia and Poland. "But I'm extremely well informed," Healey says, "on Russian Turkestan, even though the information hasn't been especially useful since."

Born in New York City early in the century, Healey received his early education in France, Germany and Switzerland, returning to this country to attend Yale University, of which he is a graduate, and to do postgraduate work in geography and archeology at Columbia.

During the years covering most of his exploration of Central America, he and his family lived at San Cristobal las Casas, which is about 8000 feet high in the mountains of southern Mexico and an easy "jumping off spot" by plane into the jungle.

Since recovering from malaria and amoebic dysentery — which still seem to be occupational hazards of the explorer — he has confined his travelling mostly to lecture tours in this country. This spring one of his lectures was a feature of the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum's exhibition "The Art of the Ancient Maya."

Between talks, he spends his time in Big Sur with Mrs. Healey and daughters Kate, 4; Susan and Sarah, two-year-old twins. Another daughter Cici, 16, is a student at Verde Valley School, Sedona, Arizona. The explorer's mother, Mrs. Helene Healey, lives in Carmel.

"I've never been able to explain to other people or myself why I undertook this type of life," Healey admits.

"Archeologists go into the most horrendous climates and conditions in order to hold off recalcitrant natives with one hand while they dig with the other. Then they come home sometimes to tangle with the self-appointed luminaries who have been sitting in their chairs spinning theories."

"The most you can expect from a lifetime in archeology is a footnote in some textbook."

"But I enjoy going places where other people haven't been. It's quite a rewarding sensation to advance into a jungle where you can't possibly find beer cans and Kodak film wrappers."

Healey's work has, of course, garnered quite a bit more than "footnote" attention, in both popular and professional circles. It is the subject of several publications by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, which co-sponsored Healey's return to Bonampak the year following his discovery, and was covered extensively by Life Magazine (Nov. 21, 1949) and The Illustrated London News (Aug. 9, 1947), as well as by news wire services the world over.

Although the Bonampak ceremonial center consists of 48 building sites, one of the largest carved stelae ever uncovered, and two carved Maya altars, the most arresting find from the viewpoints of both layman and archeologist was the three-room vaulted temple whose 1200 square feet of limestone walls had been overlaid with a kind of stucco which in turn was covered with hieroglyphs and complex frescoes in bright blues, ochres, reds and greens of mineral and vegetable pigments.

Partly obscured by calcium slime which had seeped from the temple roof over the centuries, the paintings were brought to life by applications of kerosene, which made the calcium coating temporarily transparent; then they were painstakingly copied by Guatemalan artist Antonio Tejeda Fonseca. It is by means of the Tejeda paintings that the frescoes have become familiar to us.

Although Healey explains often that it was mere good fortune which led him to Bonampak, still he seems to have done much to earn his luck. He lived many months among the Lacandon Indians, a backward tribe of some 200 of the only surviving pagan Maya who make a living gathering chicle and cutting mahogany in the Chiapas rain forests.

He was a long time gaining their confidence, studying their religion and presenting them with gifts before he was shown the

Wilderness Of The West

A Monthly Column
by O. Edward Graves

4. VENTANA WILD AREA

Carmel is fortunate in having at its back door one of the 80 or so Wild, or Wilderness, Areas of the national forests scattered throughout the country. It is called the Ventana Wild Area, taking its name from the three peaks in the southern part of the area known as Ventana Cone, Ventana Double Cone and South Ventana Cone. They are about 4600 to 4700 feet above sea level and on the Ventana Double Cone there is a Forest Service lookout station.

These formally established areas have been set aside by the Forest Service during the last 30 years as roadless areas. They are open to trail hikers and horseback riders but motor vehicles of all kinds, including jeeps and motor-cycles, are excluded. The Forest Service writes: "One may slip in once in a while but eventually they are caught and prosecuted". This of course prevents "developments" of any kind from taking place in them. Hunting and fishing and grazing are permitted in them under the necessary controls.

The only difference between a Wild Area and a Wilderness Area is in its size. If the area contains over 100,000 acres, it is known as a Wilderness Area; if less than 100,000, it is a Wild Area. The Ventana Wild Area contains 55,884 acres. Its northern boundary is near Palo Colorado Canyon. Its southern boundary is just south of Big Sur State Park. It is within the Monterey Division of the Los Padres National Forest.

There is an extensive trail system in the Ventana Wild Area. The nearest approach from Carmel is via Palo Colorado Canyon, up the Turner Creek Trail, or from the newly-graded road to Boucher's Gap up Skinner Ridge. There is a trail up the Carmel River from Los Padres Dam and another one from China Camp beyond the Chew's Ridge lookout ruins. So the classic concept of the archeologist stumbling onto a stupendous find which automatically rockets him to fame may be out of date too.

Although literature abounds with conflicting accounts of where the Maya came from, Healey holds to the belief they were descendants of eastern Asians who brought with them into the jungle their knowledge of arithmetic, astronomy, architecture and art.

In addition to his abilities as photographer and explorer, Healey is also a specialist in positional astronomy, "very helpful during jungle trips," he explains, "because many aboriginal guides tend to travel in a pretzel instead of a straight line."

For the past eight years he has been on the staff of the UCLA Institute of Navigation, first serving as executive secretary and later as president.

station. From Big Sur State Park the Pine Ridge Trail leads into the Wild Area and it can also be approached from the Post Ranch Road via Cold Springs.

The average American citizen is very poorly informed about the national forests, of which he is a part owner. To make up for this deficiency a new book, now in the Harrison Memorial Library, entitled The National Forests, written by Arthur H. Carhart, is an excellent tool. Mr. Carhart, now a free lance writer, was formerly on the staff of the Forest Service and knows his subject thoroughly. The first chapter, Our Forest Heritage, containing 52 pages, gives the necessary background information very clearly and painlessly. The remainder of the book describes in some detail the various national forests of the country and is enlivened by personal experiences of the author on trail trips in many of them.

Any column about wilderness areas should not be concluded without some reference to the Wilderness Bill, S. 1123. I discussed it briefly in my column of March 19. It is having tough sledding in Congress, due to the opposition of certain commercial interests who fear needlessly that it may affect their means of livelihood. Actually it is a very beneficial bill that will harm nobody and will help the cause of wilderness preservation greatly. Letters to our two senators (Clair Engle and Thomas H. Kuchel) and our congressman (Charles M. Teague), supporting the bill, would do much good.

Carmel Boy Appears As Flamenco Guitarist

Tony Weaver, former Monterey Peninsula College and Carmel High School student, will return to Carmel as a guitar soloist in a concert of flamenco, to be held in the Sunset School Auditorium on Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

The concert will feature Tony's famous guitar instructor, Daniel Maravilla, internationally renowned Luisa Maravilla, dancer, and Chinin de Triana, singer. In this, his first concert appearance, Tony will play the Soleares as a solo, and will also join Senor Maravilla in a duet arrangement of the Sevillanas.

Tony has been living in San Francisco in order to study the flamenco guitar with Senor Maravilla. After the concert he plans to return to Carmel and teach the flamenco guitar while resuming his studies at Monterey Peninsula College.

John Browning Concert

By EBEN WHITTLESEY

The dividend concert of the Carmel Music Society on Monday evening was an event of unusual interest both from a musical and human interest standpoint, since it featured the return appearance of John Browning, the young pianist who made a highly favorable impression here a couple of years ago at a concert in Monterey. He is said to have matured considerably in the interim. At this concert he played some rather difficult music, preponderately Chopin, in which he showed great technical achievement, but not the fully developed artistic personality this composer demands of his greatest interpreters.

A Haydn Sonata in D Major opened the program, played with sparkling and electric vitality. The artist showed a strong and masculine style, but finesse and control in the slow movement.

Beethoven's Sonata in A Flat Major, Opus 110 is a difficult work providing a fine contrast with the Haydn. The serene and thoughtful opening movement made one feel that the artist was fully savoring the expansion into a new dimension of musical form. The last movement was full of power and perhaps a bit too much vigor. Mr. Browning's development of thematic material was clear and natural. The music rose gradually to a fine climax which was not overplayed, but allowed to speak for itself. The performance was received with marked enthusiasm.

After an intermission the balance of the program was given over entirely to Chopin. The Ballade in F Minor was forcefully played, developing a large, open tone. Mr. Browning plays his Chopin with comparatively little use of the pedal, a style I prefer. I have heard fine performances which achieved more dramatic contrast, but few that were more clear and straightforward.

Next, the Chopin Nocturne in D Flat Major was played with clarity and smoothness and a style that was not too romantic. The conclusion was particularly effective.

A group of four Chopin mazurkas provided interesting variety of mood. The first of these has a contemporary flavor that was thoroughly exploited. The artist let the music speak for itself and was not too carried away by the flashing rhythms and infectious gaiety of this form of dance.

Closing the program was the great Scherzo in C Sharp Minor with its powerful contrasts. The performance was technically brilliant, but could have gained something by a slightly less emphatic interpretation. Chopin at his best requires a maturity Mr. Browning has not yet attained, and perhaps a subtlety of understanding possessed by only a few artists. A style somewhat more flexible, more intuitive and subjective than his is needed to bring Chopin fully to life. Two Chopin encores, the so-called harp etude and the waltz in E Flat completed an excellent program. Mr. Browning seems to be on his way to a really outstanding career at the piano.

A Quiet Day On The Planning Commission Scene, For A Change

There was no report ready on the new legislation designed to control flood-lighting of buildings. There was no report ready, either, on a proposal to regulate size, character and location of on-premise signs; on the specifications to differentiate between residential apartments and motels; on the re-evaluation of the extent, location, and type of commercial zoning.

Getting together with the council to talk over mutual problems and avoid conflicts of interpretation of policy, the commission decided on the traditional answer: regular meetings are unnecessary, but meetings on specific problems which will involve establishing a policy are very helpful.

Medea, Jeffers' Great Drama At Forest Theater

mous outpouring of the spirit that only a superlative actress would dare to play the role.

Ruth Warshawsky will carry the title role in tomorrow night's performance. Gifted with wide experience, an arresting stage personality, and a vibrant voice capable of the tremendous range of emotion demanded of Medea, she is ideally suited for the role.

Supporting Ruth Warshawsky is an all-star cast, composed of seasoned actors. Lloyd Jenkins has had a brilliant professional acting career on the stage, in the movies, and in radio and TV. He will be seen here as Jason, whose casting off Medea brings ruin. Betty Fowlston plays the key role of the nurse. Carmelites will remember her as an outstanding comedienne, in all the little theater groups of the peninsula. Besides these productions she has also had operatic, television and radio work. The part of the Tutor will be played by David Walton, a comparative new-comer to the Carmel stage. His performances at the Wharf Theatre, however, in Wonderful Town and Waiting For Godot augur well for his success in this new role.

The three Greek chorus women are headed by Rosamund Beck-Meyer, who has frequently appeared with great acclaim in the local little theater offerings. The second woman will be Gertrude Chappell, a graduate of the famous University of Iowa drama department and a student at the Actors' Lab in Los Angeles, besides playing leads in Peninsula plays. Caroline Harriman will make her debut on the local theatrical scene with the part of the third chorus woman, although she has already played Greek plays before Greek speaking audiences.

Nick LeFeuvre has the role of Aegeus, and brings to it experience gained in Broadway productions and summer stock. Creon, the scheming king, is played by Bernard Szold, whose experience at directing and coaching famous names of stage and screen would fill an entire edition of the Pine Cone. He has been responsible for the expert directing of this Forest Theater drama.

Two waiting women will be Camille Arsenault and Jacqueline Clampett, and the two children, so mercilessly killed by their mother, are Jerry Zellhoefer and Perla Armanasco.

The set has been designed and executed by Ruth Allen assisted by Polly Bowhay. Dave Kirk, technical director, Elvina Green, assistant to the director, Henry Dunakin, music, and Michael MacKay, house manager. —D.M.C.

Mary Lindsay-Oliver's Students In Recital

By EBEN WHITTLESEY

It was my privilege to attend the recital of Mary Lindsay-Oliver's students held at All Saints' Parish Hall on Sunday afternoon. Five voice pupils and two piano students appeared on the program. Several were making their first appearance before an audience as vocal or instrumental artists. Some of the students have been studying only a short time, and of these it should be said that they showed considerable poise and composure. Miss Lindsay-Oliver, whose wide experience and numerous accomplishments in the fields of composition, performance and production were hinted at in the printed program, is also an excellent accompanist. In this role she gave firm and understanding support to the singers.

Dorothy Lind opened the recital singing "Songs My Mother Sang, Keep On Hopin'", and as an encore the amusing and touching "If No One Ever Married Me." She sang with tender meaning and spirit, evoking a warm and friendly tone, albeit somewhat wanting in power and projection. Her manner is expressive.

Mr. Frank Farr, also making his first appearance as a performing artist, played two Chopin selections; a nocturne, Opus 9, No. 2 and Valse Lento. He had a pleasant and expressive manner of playing, and showed a feeling for musical form. In the second piece his rhythm and tone were especially good. The music was a bit ambitious for a beginner, but he acquitted himself well.

Miss Ora Fallis, who is a soprano, sang three songs with considerable dramatic feeling. Her vocal control is not yet equal to her warmth of expression. She showed good judgment in substituting two simple songs for the rather ambitious operatic selections listed on the program. As an encore Miss Fallis gave "My Song to You," composed by a California poet, with music by Miss Lindsay-Oliver. This was a simple and appealing love song.

Gilbert Schoenbrod, a baritone, sang "Caro Mio Bene" with mellow tone and winning sincerity. His second selection was "I Attempt From Love's Sickness to Fly" by Purcell which he rendered with dignity and spirit. His diction is very clear. As an encore Mr. Schoenbrod sang "The Azra" with control and dramatic feeling.

After an intermission, Miss Marjorie Pegram reopened the program in her rich contralto, singing "Prayer" from "Le Cid." Her second selection was also operatic, "Romance" from "La Gioconda." She displayed power and depth of tone, and I have not heard her in better voice. Her encore, "I Heard a Gull" was sung with warm pathos.

Richard Turner at the piano played two Chopin preludes and a group of Schubert waltzes, with spirit and a lively light touch. He had good rhythm and an expressive manner of playing.

The last artist was Anita Sohn. Miss Sohn opened with "Amarilli" by Caccini and followed this with a familiar aria from "Samson and Delilah." Her French was clear and distinct and she was expertly accompanied by Miss Lindsay-Oliver, but the selections were somewhat ambitious. The urge to attempt performance of the great classics of musical literature is hard to resist at times.

Hearst Castle Road Gets Emergency Repair For Tourist Traffic

One piece of road reconstruction that will be welcomed by Carmel residents and tourists alike is the surfacing and re-alignment of that dusty, rutted two miles of road leading from the highway to the Hearst San Simeon State Monument (Hearst Castle). The work will be completed this week, according to a notice received today from State Division of Highways Engineer A. M. Nash.

A new public parking lot which will hold over 200 cars has been constructed about a half mile up this road, and nearer to the highway another parking lot has also been set aside. This second lot has been built in order that tourists towing trailers would not take up so much space in the upper parking area. Where the original lot is, a bus loading, turn-around and official parking section has been set aside.

The traffic to the Hearst Castle, opened only last spring, has exceeded all expectations, and the existing road was unable to stand up under it. The final cost of refurbishing the access, including drainage structures and heavy equipment crossings will come to about $275,000.

Lynne Goldwater Wed Saturday

Lynne Goldwater, daughter of Mrs. William Daniel Pratt Jr. of Pebble Beach and Robert Williams Goldwater of Phoenix, Arizona, was married on Saturday morning to John McGowan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John McGowan of Denver, Colorado. The ceremony took place at 11:00 o'clock in Carmel Mission which was decorated with arrangements of tall tapers, white stock and yellow daisies. The Reverend Father John McSweeney read the service before a group of family members and intimate friends.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Brussels lace trimmed the full skirt, neckline and long pointed sleeves of her heavy peau de soie gown. Her full length veil of the same lace was held in place by a cap of the lace combined with peau de soie and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids.

Her attendants were Jocelyn McAlpine of Bakersfield and Colorado Springs as maid of honor and her younger sister, Sally, as flower girl. They were dressed alike in yellow peau de soie frocks, wore crowns of white Shasta daisies in their hair and carried arrangements of the same flowers.

Barry M. Goldwater Jr. of Phoenix, the bride's cousin, was best man for the groom and ushers were the bride's brother, Robert Goldwater Jr. and her cousin, Michael Goldwater.

Yellow and white flowers decorated the rooms of the bride's mother's home in Pebble Beach for the wedding breakfast which followed the ceremony. Mrs. Pratt received the guests wearing a beige silk shantung gown, matching hat and a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids. Mrs. McGowan, the groom's mother wore a rose lace dress with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Out of town guests included the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Samuel M. Johnston and Mrs. Baron Goldwater; her uncle and aunt, Senator and Mrs. Barry Goldwater; Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Erskine, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Barney J. Leonard, Terry Leonard, A. Lee More, Mrs. Thomas Ross, all of Phoenix; Mrs. William D. Pratt of Colorado Springs and Phoenix; Miss Suzie Orth, Detroit; Miss Betty Earle, La Jolla; and Robert Earle, San Francisco.

After a honeymoon in Canada the young couple will live in Denver.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Colorado where she was affiliated with Pi Beta Phi sorority. Her husband graduated from the same university and was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

MERGING TIDES

*Tides caress and then forsake the sands;
Gulls, weary of beating against the wind,
Seek cliffs for rest.
The mauve and gold of glorified clouds
Yields to the night.
Wind-tormented trees bow to tyranny
And submit with murmured protest.
Yet the leaf becomes one with the soil,
The birds also.
Waves merge with retreating tides,
Indistinguishable.
The hungry spirit finds unity with God.*

—LAURA JANET LARSON

PAIRED HOKKU FIRETHORN BERRIES

Hungry robin flock and my eyes both find a feast in firethorn berries.

PERSIMMON TREE IN OCTOBER

Leaves, scarlet as fruit, are sweeter food for spirit than ripe fruit for mouth.

—HELEN G. JEFFERSON

THE HERMIT THRUSH

*He flew against the glass and fell
Among the autumn leaves beneath the window.
I picked him up, his heart still beating
But the eyes filmed and the delicate claws
Curled inward.
He lay a moment in my curved palm
Warm against my hand,
The fine speckled feathers of his breast
Overlapping in a dappled pattern
Moving faintly to his breathing—
The beautiful rusty brown of the wings
Folded now, and the tail narrowed—
Perfect equipage for flight
But the life, the power ebbing.
And then the eyelids moved...
He turned in my hand, the little claws spreading.
I put him on the grass—
He stood huddled, opening and closing his eyes,
But standing of his own accord.
I touched him gently, and he moved away—
His wings fluttered, opened, closed again,
Then spread to their natural element,
Lifted and sped him safely back to life.*

—ELIZABETH BANCROFT

Juna Gemmill Sunday Bride

Juna Elaine Gemmill and Norman Douglas Wild were married on Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in the Carmel Presbyterian Church by Dr. Joseph M. Ewing. The gold bands used in the double ring ceremony were heirlooms in the groom's family. Lighted tapers and urns filled with pink and white gladioli decorated the church and Pamela McFayden sang I'll Walk With You and The Lord's Prayer.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Clarence Gemmill of Pasadena, the bride wore a princess style dress of white Chantilly lace with a sweetheart neckline. Skirt fullness was emphasized by a hoop skirt and the high waistline by two rows of narrow satin ribbon. Her fingertip veil fell from a Queen Anne lace cap and she carried a crescent bouquet of white rosebuds.

Her attendant was Lorraine Coscarelli of San Jose who wore a ballerina length gown of deep pink taffeta with pale pink accessories and carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations.

Best man was Richard Koon of San Jose. Arthur Wild Jr. flew from Long Beach to be an usher at his brother's wedding. He was accompanied by his wife and eldest daughter, Diane. Roger Tarmann of Berkeley, a graduate student at the University of California, was the other usher.

The reception immediately following the ceremony was held in the patio and garden of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wild. Arrangements of white stock, pink carnations and blue delphiniums decorated the rooms of the house. Potted white hydrangeas and ferns were placed about the patio.

Mrs. Wild received the guests in a pale green brocaded satin sheath with matching stole and white accessories. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gemmill of Cataraugus, New York, were prevented by illness from attending the wedding.

When the bridal couple left for a honeymoon at Crater Lake National Park in Oregon, the bride was wearing a champagne colored raw silk ensemble with matching orchids and black accessories. The bridegroom will be a ranger naturalist in the Park for the fifth summer. In the fall they will return to live in San Jose where both are teachers.

The bride, a university graduate, obtained her teaching credentials in New York State where she taught for two years before coming to San Jose. For the past two years she has taught English and social studies at Roosevelt Junior High School in San Jose.

Her husband attended San Francisco City College and the University of California before receiving his bachelor's degree from Humboldt State College. For the past two years he has been working towards his master's degree at San Jose State College. He teaches mathematics and science at Roosevelt Junior High School. During his two-year Army service, he spent a year in Korea.

Fifty-Sixth Anniversary Party

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Skene surprised them on Monday, the fifty-sixth anniversary of the Skene's wedding in England, by arriving unexpectedly for a tea party. S. Patterson, Mrs. H. Lowenhaupt, Mrs. Chris Blasquez, Mrs. Olive Aldred and Henry F. Dickinson, Mrs. Skene's brother.

In 1923 Mr. and Mrs. Skene came to live in Carmel, thus fulfilling a promise Mr. Skene made at the time of his marriage. He told his bride that, if she lived with him in Africa while he served as District Commissioner of the Fort Hall district in Kenya, when he retired he would live in the United States, her native land.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How scientific understanding of God gives new inspiration and meaning to life will be a theme presented at Christian Science services Sunday.

Highlighting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christian Science" is the Golden Text from I Peter (1:25): "The word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

Selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "The time for thinkers has come. Truth, independent of doctrines and time-honored systems, knocks at the portal of humanity" (vii: 13-15).

Among the Bible passages will be this verse from Isaiah (50:4): "The Lord God hath given me the tongue of the learned, that I should know how to speak a word in season to him that is weary; he wakeneth morning by morning, he wakeneth mine ear to hear as the learned."

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

Ruth Galvin Thornburg, Librarian

When the day comes up all foggy out of somewhere 'cross the bay, it's time for a good book and a fire in the fireplace. We have the good books, and we hope you have the fireplace; if not, we have that, too. In either case, you must make a stop at the library, and that's when we trap you with new books. There are several especially interesting ones this week to tempt you into forgetting conflicts over unwelcome freeways, the crowds on the streets, the sharks in the ocean, and where is the peace of yesteryear.

Make no mistake about it, Mary Renault writes well. Her two earlier books, The Last of the Wine and The King Must Die, were good ones and prepared a devoted audience for anything she might write. Her newest work, entitled The Charioteer, is different in setting and time. It is laid in present day England during the last war, a great deal of the action taking place in hospitals because the main character is a young man who was wounded in action. However, all three books have one thing in common in that all are concerned with homosexuality, especially the last one. In The Char- lioteer, the central problem is the adjustment of three young men to the fact that they are homosexuals. If such a problem is distasteful to you, remember you were warned before you borrowed the book. And if you do not read this column, well, shame on you anyway!

We bought two copies of The Chinese Box by Katherine Eyre, even before it started circulating, because the place is San Francisco in the eighties, and things done about San Francisco by a San Franciscan, are sure fire with us every day. It is a novel of suspense, and has had very good reviews.

A charming autobiography is I Knew a Phoenix by May Sarton. These are notes and short articles on her life, remembered lovingly, and retold pleasantly. The book may bring a sense of happy remembrance to many readers.

An interesting book about the archeologist Heinrich Schliemann was written by Robert Payne and entitled The Gold of Troy. Schliemann began his business life as a grocery clerk and by the time he was 44 he had made a fortune and was ready to begin a career as an archeologist. He had a fierce hunger for gold and he believed that the gold of King Priam and the buried walls of Troy lay hidden under the earth somewhere in Asia Minor. He was right, and by using the most unscientific of methods he actually found what he was looking for. This is the story of his life.

The idea of uniting in a book the collected opinions of several experts on the craft of writing is not a new one. It has been done many times, and the latest of these is Writer's Roundtable edited by Helen Hull and containing the opinions of 21 experts. There is a lot of practical advice in this little book.

Anyone who read and enjoyed Man from Montmartre, which was the fictionalized account of the life of Maurice Utrillo, will probably wish to read The Valadon Drama, which is the biography of Utrillo's mother, Suzanne Valadon. The fact that these two were contemporaries of Renoir, Cezanne and Toulouse-Lautrec, makes it difficult to realize that Valadon died in 1938 and Utrillo in 1955. Those were the days when talent and dissipation ran through life hand-in-hand. Only a miracle or drastic reform allowed an artist to live beyond 70 years as did these two. The Valadon Drama was written by John Storm.

The summer reading club is starting with a rush. Encourage your right-age children to join and enjoy a summer with fact and fantasy.

J. Lindsay-Oliver

James Lindsay-Oliver, brother of Miss Mary Lindsay-Oliver of Carmel, died last week in Evanston, Illinois, after undergoing two operations. Miss Lindsay-Oliver learned of his death shortly before she presented her adult music pupils in recital on Sunday afternoon.

Until his last illness, Mr. Lindsay-Oliver was an engineer for Cook County, Illinois. He designed and directed the construction of many new roads leading out of Chicago and earlier in his career engineered a railroad in Southern Illinois.

During this latter period he met and married his wife, Edna Aiken. Mr. Lindsay-Oliver was sent to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, to be trained as an officer during World War I then served as a lieutenant colonel in Europe. During his overseas service his son, now Major John Gordon Lindsay-Oliver, was born. Major Lindsay-Oliver visited his aunt in Carmel two weeks ago. He is presently stationed for two months at a California air base.

Lieutenant Colonel Lindsay-Oliver resigned his commission at the end of World War I. He refused to remain on active duty because he firmly believed in the principles of his Scottish father and grandfathers, who were men of peace. He was highly respected for his principles and integrity.

In addition to his wife and sister, he leaves a daughter, Edith; five grandchildren; another sister, Edith Margaret, living in Illinois; two brothers, Gordon, who lives in the United States and Faulconer, living in Australia. Preceding him in death were three other brothers, George Lindsay-Oliver, former British Governor of the Channel Islands, John Lindsay-Oliver, Native Commissioner in Southern Rhodesia, decorated three times by the British king, and Thomas who won a scholarship at Loretto.

CARMEL FOUNDATION NOTES

The time is 3:00 o'clock and all interested persons are invited. Tea will follow.

To California...

a glass of beer
is many things

Californians may not have invented the outdoor barbecue, but they'll tell you it's a trademark for their wonderful way of life. And so is a glass of cool, light beer. It's the perfect refreshment for every taste, every occasion.

And beer has another meaning in this state. It stands for a growing economy. Last year, for example, the Brewing Industry paid more than $27 million in California state taxes. This money helps to build new schools, parks and highways—just one more reason why beer means better living for Californians.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Carmel, Calif.
June 20, 1959

would be a high point of the festival.

J. William Mac Lennan

The Carmel Pine Cone
My Dear Mrs. Cook:

There seems to be a great variety of suggestions offered for the Carmel Arts Festival of next year. As former President of the Allied Arts Council of Santa Barbara, organizer of the Old Spanish Days there, manager of its Art Fair and Art Ball and member of the board of directors of the Drama Branch of the Community Arts, may I add a few suggestions that come to mind.

Instead of Rembrandt or some other ancient, honor on that occasion our own poet, Robinson Jeffers. Offer a prize for the best poem, with Jeffers as one of the judges. Also prizes for the best music composed locally.

A street art fair between Fifth and Sixth avenues on Dolores. That's plenty of room. On Saturday. One day only. Paintings, sculpture, ceramics on display in all possible windows on Ocean Avenue. Exhibitions, of course, in the art galleries, plays in the theaters and concerts at Sunset School. A platform in the Plaza where our young musicians may perform, plus an exhibition of the work of our cartoonists. Garden Tours; Flower Show.

These are some of the projects that come to mind. They would involve the cooperation of many organizations, and make the festival an all-Carmel affair.

Oh, yes, a reception at the City Hall by the Mayor and Council with music and refreshments

The Carmel Pine Cone
Dear Editor:

Being a frequent sojourner in beautiful Carmel-by-the-Sea, I am most concerned over two very busy and quite dangerous intersections in the neighborhood where I stay.

It is indeed surprising that, in this careful and civic-minded community, at the southwest corner of Third and Torres, the lumber company is permitted to stack its piles of lumber so high and so close to the gutter as to cover completely the narrow pathway designated as sidewalk area. In driving both west on Third and north on Torres, this is an absolutely blind approach endangering life and limb of drivers, pedestrians and vehicles.

I heartily echo the recently expressed sentiments in The Pine Cone that there should be some kind of traffic control at Third and Junipero streets. Here the southwest corner approach from either south or east is hazardedly obscured.

Improvement of the conditions at these two corners merits the attention of an alert community.

Most sincerely,
Observer

We have checked with the police department on the number of accidents occurring at these two corners. At Torres and Third, three accidents have taken place in an 11-year period, one with injury; at Junipero and Third there have been four fender-fights, one of which resulted in an injury.

The city's attitude toward signs on the streets is well-known: the fewer, the better, and in general we (editor pro-tempore speaking) are in hearty accord with this policy. In practically all cases, by staying on one's own side of the road and adopting a cautious distrustful approach at obscured corners the life and limb of the Carmel resident has been preserved better than in most cities.

To point this up, Carmel has just received an Excellence of Pedestrian Protection award from the American Automobile Association because it had no pedestrian deaths in 1958. Carmel has now achieved the record of 14 years without a single pedestrian traffic fatality. In 15 years only one death has been caused by an automobile accident here, according to police records, and in that one, the car hit a tree.

Characteristically, too, the Carmelite has preferred to use the open street as his walkway, in the comforting knowledge that at a crucial moment, a brisk spring to the side of the road would land him in the wildwood facetiously called "the sidewalk area" (a width of some eight feet).

In the vicinity of the lumber stacks, however, a leaping pedestrian would truly find himself facing an insurmountable barrier of two-by-fours. The sidewalk here has vanished and it should reappear after the next inspection tour of the city council.

Carmel Adult School Plans To Fill Summer Time With Activities

The schedule of classes for the Carmel Adult School which starts July 6 and continues for six weeks ending on August 14, has been announced by Charles L. Dawson, Principal.

Summertime gives the art aspirants many opportunities, among them being the chance to take art under the direction of the Carmel Adult School art teachers: Kay Rodgers, Charcoal Portraiture; Clarence Bates, Outdoor Painting and Color and Design; Charles Lee, Sketching and Painting; and Mrs. Helen Snyder, Driftwood Sculpture.

Pottery, with Mr. Robert Lynn as instructor, will meet Monday through Thursday nights. On Monday and Wednesday nights both adults and children work together with Tuesday and Thursday reserved for adults only.

English for New Americans will meet with Mr. Frederick Baldus as instructor.

For information regarding Parent Nursery School, phone Mrs. Rosa Doner, MA 4-7258; and for Sewing phone Mrs. Mary Dickinson, MA 4-4894.

Howard Byrne will continue his popular Machine Woodworking class on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Electronics is the only new class being offered. Mr. Ian Belangee will conduct this class in the high school radio room. Here is your chance to learn how to fix your radio, TV, etc., or at least to learn the principles involved.

Orchestra is open to both adults and children and will meet in the high school music room.

A fee of $1.00 per course will be charged with the exception of the course, English for New Americans. Additional fees will be charged in classes demanding special supplies and equipment.

Registration is taken at the first class meeting. The size of the class determines whether it will continue, so first night attendance is important.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Carmel Adult School office at Carmel High School, Phone MA 4-1821 Monday through Friday between 9:00 and 12:00 noon.

Real Estate Class To Hold Summer Session

A summer class in real estate will be held in Monterey at the Monterey Civic Club, 540 Calle Principal, beginning July 7, at 8:00 o'clock in the evening.

Instructor will be Eph Feldman, first student to receive a master of science degree in real estate at the University of Southern California where he also received the Wall Street Journal Award as the outstanding senior in the department of finance.

Holder of a California Adult Education Credential, Feldman has offered the course privately and in the public schools for the past several years. He considers teaching a part-time hobby; he is a broker and land developer and has been elected president of the North San Diego County chapter of the Society of Residential Appraisers.

The course is designed to inform property owners on purchase and investment, and to prepare prospective real estate salesmen and brokers for the new state license examinations.

Pat Ricketts Wed Saturday

Patricia Ricketts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Ricketts, was married to Richard Sippel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Sippel of Fresno, on Saturday afternoon in All Saints' Episcopal Church by the Reverend David Hill.

Arrangements of white stock decorated the altar and the same flowers, tied with white ribbon bows marked the ends of center aisle pews of the church.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage, wore a full length dress of white tulle over white satin. The lace bodice of the gown had long sleeves and a Sabrina neckline. She carried a white prayer book covered with a spray of white orchids.

Sarah McCloud was maid of honor in a street length turquoise blue taffeta gown with folds of matching chiffon at the neckline extending in back into a flowing drape. Her headband matched her dress and she carried a spray of pink carnations.

Sally Spurr and Marcie Schoech of Modesto were bridesmaids. Their dresses and flowers were similar to those of the maid of honor.

Robert Drakelich of Fresno was best man. Ushers were Gene Miller, Carlos Phillips, James Tobin and Michael Ricketts, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Ricketts attended her daughter's marriage in a pale blue lace sheath with matching taffeta cummerbund, shoes and hat and an orchid corsage.

The reception following the wedding was held in the Carmel Woman's Club. After a honeymoon at Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies, the young couple will live in Carmel.

The bride will join the faculty of Carmel High School in September and teach in the business department. She was born in Carmel and graduated from Carmel schools before entering Fresno State College where she received her bachelor's degree in business education this month.

Her husband is a graduate of Fresno High School and Fresno State College and was a member of the Fresno Ski Club.

Tuesday evening Polly was guest of honor at a surprise bon voyage dinner party given by Janet Fehring. Guests were Wendy Draper, Carla Budd, Wendy Burnham, Lucinda Lloyd, Connie Chedester, Sandra Blackman, Susan White and Gail da Roza.

On Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Smith will give a pre-sailing party for Sandra at the Clift Hotel in San Francisco.

Joellen graduated this month from Greenwich Academy and David is a junior at Brunswick School in Greenwich. They are both enthusiastic about Carmel which they are visiting for the first time.

Little Pfeiffer Not So Little Any More, Miss Molera Gives 25 Acres

Pfeiffer School District has received a gift of more than 25 acres of land for a new school site from Miss Frances M. Molera of Big Sur and San Francisco. The property is located along the southeasterly border of her Rancho El Sur at Big Sur.

The site, which provides ample room for expansion, is situated on a long gently rolling bench of land surrounded by redwoods. It looks towards the ocean on the west and up the Big Sur Valley to the East and is in close proximity to the Point Sur Naval Facility.

Pfeiffer School District trustees have made an agreement with Palo Colorado District to accept all pupils living in the Capehart housing project planned for the facility.

Terms of the gift are that the property shall be used for school purposes only and includes an easement for a roadway from Highway 1 to the site.

The architectural firm of Burde, Shaw and Kearns has been selected by Pfeiffer trustees to design the new school on the Molera property. Brooks Clement, Pfeiffer school board chairman, represented the district in negotiations.

The present Pfeiffer School is overcrowded and the site too small for building expansion. Trustees have unsuccessfully endeavored to find a site for a larger school in the Big Sur area. Miss Molera's gift solves this problem.

COUNTY PLANNERS MEET

The County Planning Commission will consider applications for use permits on Monday for the Carmel Highlands Community Fire House, a new fire house for the area and a community center on property between Fern Canyon Road and Highway 1, and a trailer park off the Cabrillo Highway on Point Sixteen in the Gamboa area.

Alice Ketcham

Mrs. Alice L. Ketcham died on Monday night in Mount Shasta Hospital in northern California after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. She was stricken while on a motor trip to Seattle with friends.

In March Mrs. Ketcham obtained an interlocutory divorce decree from cartoonist Henry (Hank) Ketcham to whom she had been married for 16 years. The divorce would not have become final until March, 1960. She had lived in Carmel for 12 years.

Mrs. Ketcham was born in Summerville, Massachusetts, on March 10, 1918.

Surviving are her husband and a son, Dennis Ketcham, both of Carmel Valley; her father, Ralph J. Mahar of Sunland; two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Lataska of Sunland and Mrs. Esther L. Buccell of Wakefield, Massachusetts; and a brother, Lieutenant Commander Ralph J. Mahar Jr. (USN) of Chula Vista.

Requiem Mass will be celebrated tomorrow morning at 10:00 o'clock in Carmel Mission. Burial will be in the Catholic section of Mission Memorial Park.

Rosary will be recited this evening at 8:00 o'clock in Mission Mortuary.

Sports...

place in league hitting with a .417 average.

The complete schedule for all teams was printed in the May 21 issue of the Pine Cone, but here is a reminder for Carmel's remaining games.

Sunday, June 28, Carmel Merchants vs. Central Labor Council at El Estero Park, Monterey
Saturday, July 4, Carmel Merchants vs. Monterey Merchants at El Estero Park

Sunday, July 5, Carmel Merchants vs. Pacific Grove Merchants at Pacific Grove

Saturday, July 11, Carmel Merchants vs. Monterey Moose Lodge at Carmel High School field.

Sunday, July 12, Carmel Merchants vs. Baldwin Pianos at El Estero Park

Sunday, July 19, The Old Timers game and League Barbeque at El Estero Park

We would again like to list the sponsors of the players for this year's team, who have generously donated toward the continuance of baseball for the Carmel Babe Ruth team. Pilot Market, Village Laundromat, Carmel Sport Shop (Ken Bennett), Nielsen Bros., The Shoe Box, Mr. Shreve Archer, Robert Little (General Insurance), Hudelson & Myers, San Carlos Agency, Spencer's House of Cards, Bank of Carmel, J. O. Handley, Benny Updike of Kip's Meat Market, Burgess Auto Service, Comstock Associates.

Additional advertisers for the team are the following: Putnam & Raggett, Willard Whitney, Bolinger's Candies, Womble's Pharmacy, Philip Wilson Jr, Realtor.

A brand new sponsor has appeared just recently in Jim Bannerman, who is the owner of the Union Oil Station in Carmel. Mr. Bannerman is an old-time Carmel and is interested still in athletics, having played considerable in his day. His donation was in the form of some Louisville Slugger Bats which we can well use during the second half of our schedule. It might well be said that a bat suited to the size of a player and having good wood, plus the all-important weight balance, can materially help in the hit production department.

There will be five more games played by our team and one of these will be part of a double header at the new Carmel High School baseball field, which is located at the junction of Morse Drive and Highway No. 1, below the high school entrance. Let's see if you can make this and even more games of the remaining schedule. Fort Ord has generously loaned us a section of bleachers for the Babe Ruth Games in Carmel so there is ample room for the new fans.

For those persons interested in seeing the league program with the pictures of all six teams displayed please look in The Village Cleaner window, where Mr. Jim Burkholder has given us space.

Carmel River, Arroyo Seco Planted With Fish

This week the following coastal county streams and lakes are scheduled to be restocked with catchable-sized trout by the Department of Fish and Game. Anglers are reminded that this list is tentative and subject to change, depending on water and road conditions and other factors: Monterey County—Carmel River; Arroyo Seco Creek. Santa Cruz County—Bear, Fall, San Vicente Creeks; San Lorenzo River, Corralitos Creek.

LOFTONS LEAVE SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lofton with their daughters Nancy and Melissa leave on Sunday to drive East. They will visit Mrs. Lofton's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Schallert, in Altamonte Springs, Florida, go to Mr. Lofton's home in McClellanville, South Carolina; and also visit Roanoke Island and the Sea Islands. They leave California over the Tioga Pass and stop in Aspen, Colorado.

While they are away Mr. Lofton will fill portrait commissions in Birmingham, Alabama, and Minneapolis, Minnesota. Mr. and Mrs. Lofton and Melissa plan to be back in Carmel early in September. Nancy will remain in the East to return for her second year of study at St. John's College in Annapolis.

During July, the Lofton's Carmel home will be occupied by Judge and Mrs. George Buck of Stockton. Senator and Mrs. Edwin J. Regan of Weaverville have taken the house for the month of August.
